The concentrates are typically homogeneous for at least 24 hours and readily ready on dilution into water. The concentrates may also contain an emulsifying agent especially a polysiloxane. Upon dilution in water, the emulsions formed from the concentrates are applied to substances in combination with agrochemically active ingredients, preferably N-phosphonomethylglycine in the form of its soluble salts, to control weeds.

Abstract:

A liquid and readily flowable composition includes (a) a room-temperature-solid solute, such as a nonionic surfactant, preferably having a hydrophilic-lipophile balance from about 11.1 to about 18.4, a (b) C8-C14 fatty acid, or combination thereof; (c) an alkoxylated fatty etheralcohol; and (d) water, if needed. The alkoxylated fatty etheralcohol, which is substantially liquid at room temperature, solubilizes the solid solute to form a homogeneous composition which is liquid and readily flowable at room temperature. The solute classes of nonionic surfactants include polyethylene oxide carboxylic acid esters, alkoxylated fatty alcohols, poloxamers, alkyl polyetheramines, or combinations thereof. Useful alkoxylated fatty etheralcohols include propoxylated fatty etheralcohols.

Abstract:

The properties of 2-pyridine-4-carboxylic acid substituted polyimides can be dramatically altered by increasing the presence of the carboxylic acid substituted pyridine monomer of the polyimides, such that the polyimides have an acid equivalent weight of about 600-8,000 daltons and a molecular weight average M_w of about 1,000-50,000 daltons resulting in improved detergent and water solubility and the ability to form water-in-oil emulsions thereby providing usefulness across a broad range of formulations having a rheology and stability under hydrocarbon compatibility and cleaning properties.

Original Title Solvated non-ionic surfactants (use of fatty etheralcohols to solubilize non-ionic surfactants).

Abstract: A liquid and readily flowable composition includes (a) a room-temperature-solid solute comprising at least one nonionic surfactant, preferably having a hydrophilic-lipophilic balance from about 11.1 to about 18.8, (b) at least one fatty etheralcohol; and (c) water, if needed. The fatty etheralcohol, which is substantially liquid at room temperature, solubilizes the solid solute to form a homogeneous composition which is liquid and readily flowable at room temperature. The subset classes of nonionic surfactants include polyalkylene oxide carboxylic acid esters, alkylated fatty alcohols, polyurethanes, alkyl polyacrylates, or combinations thereof. Usual fatty etheralcohols include fatty etheralcohols.
